Tuesday Evening June 2nd 1863

Not finish my letter last night.
At present I have Mrs Hyde and her son staying here, she & her son delicate health. This afternoon Mrs J. Lloyd came to see her, so I also saw her for a few minutes, the Locks rule, though her not leave my room, Mrs Lloyd seemed to come again soon and stay some time -

You would be surprised to see how well Ellick is getting on both her parentage, and she is now also taking singing lessons with Mr. Dunlop, she has a lovely good voice, and I thank God trained well indeed -

Dog letter was getting on lovely. Kelly is such a lovely little thing, she can say Daddy Mama Grace & ta ta from Jess bar anything. I think her so much like her Mother — Mrs. Scott is back at St Marks.
Mrs Maclean still lives, about my fortnight he seems to have seven fits, sort of convulsions, then they pass over and he collapses again.
Mrs Maclean is looking very tired.
Dog Mrs Morton seems perfectly & returns to the Cape, she tells me her health is very bad, the climate of England does not suit her.
I suppose she will leave again.
It was a most foolish marriage.
You don't know how pleased I am Doris has passed. Kindest re-membrances to the Girls, and fond Clean & fresh, Sankey has done his work very well, to envy me with me. He had such quick respectable Irishmen, that gave no trouble. I asked him I thought to come and board with me, and see the home, the boy found to come one day this week. I then from will learn her report.

It is very good of him to speak so kindly of my being in from home, It is a great pleasure to me, living here, and be all the "Chieftan Home". It is the only home in Dunlay I really like - I still have his empty rooms, but trust they will be filled before long. There are so many boarding houses now
